John Grady, a confessed bigamist, pended sentence as the result of the pleadings of his wife and five children with Judge Aspinall in the Brooklyn County Court. The whole Grady family, including John's mother-in-law, were in court to-day to receive the wandering husband with open arms, and there kind words by Judge Aspinall when John clasped an armful of babies and ears, a longshoreman, who until last September had led an uneventful and noriticised life. But John went out one day and started pickling his system with "Longshoreman's Delight," superinducng a long period of good-natured for-During this stage he met a good-looking young woman and forgot hat he had a wife, five children and a he was married to the young woman Then he sobered up, remembered he had mate for the money. He has had the plans prepared and will begin it as soon as he can have the funds.

The site is in the Eighth Ward, at Thirty-sixth street and Second avenue. The city has acousted the ground for a bunch of municipal-ownership ideas for the market. There will be a minicipal-ownership overhead trolley for transporting goods around the market, a municipal-ownership incinerator and a recreation pier extending into the bay.

The trolley is spoken of as an innovation, being somewhat like department-store carriers, only stronger. There will be several nice borough jobs to give bonds and they went up to a funny big desk and there another policeman laughed at them.

MARY DIDN'T LIKE

Anyway Yonkers Is Far from Broadway, So She Quit Job.

Mary Burns didn't like her job in Yonkers, forty-five minutes from Broad-way. She worked for C. W. Hudson, and she explained to day to Magistrate Mayo in the West Side Court that he der, Judge, in case a man sould come into the room while I was doing it." And Magistrate Mayo blushed up around the ears and laughed. Mary went to work for Hudson last Thursday. Saturday morning she disappeared. The author took an inventory, and found that $40 worth or books and linen were missing. He had worked out lots of detective stories and knew just low to proceed. He didn look for thumprints or footmarks, but took a train so town and went right to Marys stopping place. No. 258 West Thirty-seventh street.

"So long, ary," hummed the author as he took up his watch outside the house at two o'clock Saturday afternoon. After standing guard until six o'clock yesterday morning, he was rewarded by a sight of the missing Mary. He grabbed her and yelled. She was taken to the West Thirty-seventh street station and to-day arraigned. Hudson did not appear in court, and the Magistrate discharged Mary, who said she didn't steal anything, and that she left merely because she didn't care to climb & ladder. appeared. Benning, an electical engineer, of No. 2007 Third avenue, missed a steamer for Lima, Peru, to-day to appear in the West Side Court. The teamster was James Franklin thirty-two years old, of No. 466 Eleventh avenue, and was fined $3.

Mr. Benning wore a new hat on a Third avenue train yesterlay. Across the aislle were Franklin and three other big laborers. They made remarks about the hat, and when Mr. Benning arose to leave at Fifty-minth street, one of the gang selzed him by the throat and kicked him. His hat fell off and Franklin three with out of the window.
